ALOHA PETROLEUM HAS HEART:
DONATES MORE THAN $41,000 TO AMERICAN HEART ASSOCIATION

Honolulu, HI (October 30, 2014) – Aloha Petroleum, Ltd. recently showed a lot of heart, with a $41,394 donation to the American Heart Association. Contributions were raised through a combination of in-store donations by customers and employee fundraising.

During June and July, Aloha Petroleum raised money for the American Heart Association by setting up donation canisters at its Aloha Island Mart convenience stores on Oahu, Maui, Kauai, and Hawaii Island. Canisters were also set up at select Shell locations. In addition, throughout July all of the convenience stores sold paper hearts to customers for a donation.

Employees throughout the company were involved in various fundraising efforts, setting up concession stands with healthy snacks and fun foods, selling raffle tickets for great prizes, hosting an after-hours event with games and a photo booth at the corporate office, and holding a crafts fair and bake sale, among other activities. Employees also raised funds as a walk team via the Oahu Heart Walk, which was chaired this year by Aloha Petroleum president and CEO Richard Parry.

“Our customers and employees demonstrated they had a lot of heart through their support of our fundraising efforts on behalf of the American Heart Association,” said Parry. “Cardiovascular disease and stroke are the leading causes of death in Hawaii and the American Heart Association is working hard every day to change that. We commend AHA and are pleased to support their efforts to help prevent heart disease and stroke.”

“By policy, the American Heart Association does not accept state funding, so we rely on individual gifts and corporate support to fulfill our mission to help Hawaii’s public improve the quality of their lives free of heart disease and stroke,” said Lori Suan, American Heart Association Hawaii Division executive director. “We commend and appreciate company leaders who set the example for their employees both in charitable giving and in healthy living as Mr. Parry and Aloha Petroleum have.”
