ALOHA PETROLEUM DONATES $10,000 TO THE POLYNESIAN VOYAGING SOCIETY

HONOLULU, HAWAII (March 7, 2016) – Aloha Petroleum, Ltd. recently donated $10,000 to the Polynesian Voyaging Society, a non-profit organization that seeks to revive traditional exploration through educating students and communities. The funds were raised through the ongoing canister collection program at statewide participating Aloha Island Mart stores in November and December 2015 and then matched by Aloha Petroleum.

“Once again, we’re extremely overwhelmed by the generosity of our customers. Their continued support of our in-store canister program allows us to empower local non-profits like the Polynesian Voyaging Society to continue their outstanding work,” said Aloha Petroleum President and CEO Richard Parry.

In addition to the canister collection program, Aloha Petroleum shone the spotlight on the Polynesian Voyaging Society’s voyaging canoe, the Hokule’a, as the featured subject of its 2016 Mug Design Contest. Since 1988, the company has been distributing specially designed Hawaiian-themed coffee mugs to employees, customers, vendors and other key partners as holiday gifts. Hawaii artist Jimmy Tablante took first place in the 2016 contest, winning $3,000 for his design. The mugs were released in December 2015.

"We are extremely grateful for this generous donation from Aloha Petroleum and its customers," said Clyde Namuo, CEO of Polynesian Voyaging Society. "This support will allow us to continue sailing and fulfill our mission to inspire a global movement to mālama honua," he added.

Founded on a legacy of Pacific Ocean exploration, the Polynesian Voyaging Society seeks to perpetuate the art and science of traditional Polynesian voyaging and the spirit of exploration through experiential educational programs that inspire students and their communities to respect and care for themselves, each other, and their natural and cultural environments. Aloha Petroleum has previously used its collection canister program to support numerous other non-profit organizations including the March of Dimes, Aloha Harvest, American Heart Association and the American Red Cross.
