ALOHA PETROLEUM AND FOODLAND TO OPEN NEW GAS STATION IN EWA TOWN CENTER

Honolulu, Hawaii (February 26, 2013) – Two of Hawaii’s leading companies are joining forces again – this time to provide quality gasoline to Ewa Beach customers.

Aloha Petroleum, Ltd., the largest gasoline marketer in the state, and Foodland Super Market, Ltd., Hawaii’s largest locally-owned and operated grocery retailer, have recently begun construction on a new fueling station at Ewa Town Center, home to Foodland Ewa Beach, The Coffee Bean & Tea Leaf, and other popular businesses and restaurants. The new Foodland Gas Station will sell three grades of gasoline – Regular, Plus, and Super – plus ethanol-free Aloha Classic Gas. The three-pump fueling station, located in front of Foodland, is scheduled to open in April.

“We’ve had a long and successful relationship with Aloha Petroleum, and we know our customers value their product,” noted Jenai S. Wall, Foodland Chairman and CEO. “Thousands of our customers take advantage of the 5-cent per gallon cash discount at participating Aloha Island Marts by showing their Maika'i card."

Continued Wall, "Foodland and Aloha Petroleum are both committed to providing outstanding service, products and value to our customers."

This is the third joint venture for the companies. Aloha Petroleum and the Sullivan Family of Companies, operators of Foodland, Food Pantry and Kalama Beach Corporation, have other successful jointly operated retail fuel sites located in Pahoia and Hilo on the Big Island. A fourth collaboration is in the works on Maui, where Foodland and Aloha Petroleum will partner to open a Foodland Gas Station at the new Kehalani Village Center near Wailuku where Foodland plans to open its newest store, Foodland Kehalani, this fall.

"Our first partnership with The Sullivan Families of Companies was in 2005. We've partnered on several successful projects since then and continue to look for new opportunities to reach new customers," said Richard Parry, Aloha Petroleum President and CEO.
